Whistle-Blowing Procedures

Please refer to Annex A for the procedures for reporting and investigating suspected fraud, corruption, dishonest practices under this policy.

ANNEX A to Whistle-Blowing Policy*To All Employees of AMOS GROUP LIMITED:*WHISTLE-BLOWING PROCEDURES*Objective

To provide a well-defined and accessible channel within the Group for reporting fraud, corruption, dishonest practices or other similar matters and how investigation would be initiated upon such reporting.

Raising concerns

If you receive emails, letters from external parties/unknown source, or you discover or become aware of any fraud, corruption, dishonest practices, impropriety or wrongdoing in connection with the affairs of the Group, it is your responsibility to report this information or concerns immediately without discussing or speculating with your fellow friends/colleagues.

In addition, if you receive phone calls from external parties/unknown source reporting fraud, corruption, dishonest practices, impropriety or wrongdoing in connection with the affairs of the Group, please do not engage/participate or provide any information, transfer the call to your manager or Executive Management Team Member(s) or politely, direct the caller to one of the Whistle-blowing Officers which can be found on Company's website.

How to raise concerns

You may raise your concerns with your manager or Executive Management Team Member(s). Then, the manager or Executive Management Team Member(s) shall decide depending on the seriousness, sensitivity and "who is involved" of the matter and escalate the matter appropriately.

Importantly, you may also contact the Whistle-blowing Officer directly. Information on how to contact the Whistle-blowing Officer can be found in the Whistle-blowing Policy and on the Company's website (<https://www.amosgroup.com/gaylin/whistleblowing.html>).

You can choose to raise your concern by forwarding the information you received or sending a letter or email or by telephone. However, we strongly suggest that concerns be put in writing by providing as much information and particulars relating to the concerns as possible - including relevant names, dates and places. Although you will not have to prove that any of your allegations are true as if you are in a court of law, you will have to show that there are good reasons for your concern.

What if concerns involved a Whistle-blowing Officer or Management

In this case or having raised a concern, you feel, for good reason, that the superior or the Whistle-blowing Officer dealing with you is involved or not acting appropriately, the matter should be reported directly to the Chairman of the Audit Committee or any member of the Audit Committee. All the members of the Audit Committee are independent non-executive directors.

If for any reason you are not comfortable doing so, you should consider reporting the matter to the Chairman of the Board or to the whole Board.

If in doubt as to what to do, please consider getting advice from the Chairman of the Audit Committee who is an independent and non executive director of the Company.

Responding to concerns raised

How concerns are dealt with shall depend on the nature of the allegations being made, the urgency of the matter and who are involved. All reported concerns will be investigated.

An initial evaluation of the concerns raised and the information and documents you have provided will be done. It will then be decided whether and how best to go about instituting preliminary investigations and inquiries and the gathering of relevant documents and what action should be taken, if any. Please refer to the investigation procedure under the paragraph titled "Investigation."

The concerns reported may be investigated by the Whistle-blowing Officer together with 2 independent management staff or may be referred to:

- the police;
- other agencies;
- our external auditors; or
- an independent investigator.

It is also possible that the concern may be dealt with by or under any other established procedures or policies. We may be able to settle some concerns without carrying out any investigation or inquiry by taking an action agreed by you. If we need to take urgent action, we will do so before carrying out any investigations. We will act as swiftly as the nature of the allegations and the investigations needed allow.

Keeping the employee informed

Within 10 working days of you raising a concern, the Whistle-blowing Officer concerned will acknowledge that your concern has been received and explain how the matter is being handled.

Unless there are very extenuating circumstances, you will be kept informed of the general progress of the investigations.

Meetings with the Whistle-blowing Officer or anyone charged with carrying out investigations (whether to keep you informed or in the course of investigations) will normally take place in his or her office but can be arranged elsewhere. However, meetings will not be held in your home unless there are exceptional circumstances.

If you have requested confidentiality, you will not be required to meet with anyone except the Whistle-blowing Officer you initially approached.

Protecting you

We understand that deciding to blow the whistle is not easy. Please be assured that if you have acted in good faith you have nothing to fear.

If you raise a concern which you believe is true, appropriate action will be taken to protect you from any harassment, victimization or bullying.

Confidentiality will, to the extent that it is lawful and the investigative process allows, be maintained during investigation. Should you self-disclose your identity, we will no longer be obligated to maintain such confidence.

The concerns and allegations and any investigations which must be made and the outcome shall be dealt with discreetly and made known only to such persons and to the extent needed to deal effectively with your complaint.

You should also know that any allegation you make will not influence, or be influenced by any unrelated disciplinary action against or any redundancy procedures that may affect you.

DISCLAIMER: This printed document is an uncontrolled copy.

User are required to check for current revision prior use.

Anonymous allegations

We encourage you to identify yourself when making an allegation. Even if you feel that you cannot give your name, our Whistle-blowing Officer will still consider the matters raised seriously. However the fact that the complaint has been made anonymously will be taken into account in evaluating its merits. Please bear in mind also that investigation and the taking of quick and effective action may be impeded if the Whistle-Blowing Officer in charge does not have access to you. For instance additional information known only to you may be required in order to proceed further with the investigations.

Unconfirmed allegations/False allegations

If a concern raised in good faith is not subsequently confirmed by the investigation, no action will be taken against the person who made the report. However, we take a serious view of malicious or vexatious reports, and of any person who intentionally or willfully gives false or misleading information against someone else. Therefore, disciplinary action, or if appropriate, legal action, may be taken against a person who makes any such report.

Investigation

Once whistle-blowing is initiated, the Whistle-blowing Officer and any member of the Board of Directors together with persons in management, with copy to the Chairman of the Board, will conduct an initial assessment on the "Whistle-Blowing Report" form (Appendix 1) to determine how the investigation should proceed.

The Investigation Committee, which comprises the Whistle-blowing Officer and two independent management staff as recommended by the Board of Directors, may contact the whistle-blower and any party(ies) or personnel for further information and/or any documents that can shed light to the investigation during the course of the investigation.

The Investigation Committee must exercise great care and sensitivity and timeliness whilst carrying out the investigation to avoid "misleading or wrongful" conclusions or actions which might affect the evidence of the investigation or mistaken accusation of any party(ies).

An investigation report will be put up by the Investigation Committee to the CEO and/or his designate(s) for review and approval. Upon approval, recommended actions will be initiated. Neither the Whistle-blowing Officer nor the Investigation Committee has the authority to terminate any employee found guilty of any of the above action.

Investigation results kept confidential will NOT be disclosed or discussed with anyone other than those with a legitimate need to know.

A summary of all whistle-blowing activities prepared by Whistle-blowing Officers is to be submitted on a quarterly basis (Appendix 2) to the Audit Committee and Board of Directors.

Audit Committee and Board of Directors are to review actions taken by the Company towards whistle-blowing initiative and ensure fraudulent practices are reviewed without prejudices or biasness, and executed with professional integrity in compliance with the Company's policy.
